DEDICATION

IT is hard for one to express in words deep-seated admiration and respect for a person; it needs must be done through a deeper avenue than that—through sacrificial service. In just this way has Dr. A. C. Reid heaped praise and honor upon his Alma Mater. The quiet and devoted service which he has rendered to Wake Forest is none the less effective for all its quietness. In his classroom work, the greatest benefits are found not in the subject matter taught, but in principles of worthy living which he instills in his pupils. Someone has said that reputation is what people think one is, but character is what he is. Both in character and in reputation Dr. Reid ranks among the highest of the faculty. He is admired and respected alike for his mild, unassuming manner, his love for truth and right, his straightforwardness, but above all for his Christian gentlemanliness. It is with pleasure that we dedicate the 1933 HOWLER to one who so well deserves it.

PROLOGUE

THE life of Matthew Tyson Yates is filled with episodes which portray the ideal spirit of a Wake Forest man. Coming to this campus in 1840, while the college was still in its infancy with Dr. Samuel Wait as its President, Yates remained five years preparing himself for the fulfillment of a worldwide task which he saw open before him.

Always Yates' life was characterized by Vision and Toil. First, he got a concept of his task, and then he proceeded to accomplish it, allowing no hardship to defeat his will. While still a boy on the North Carolina farm, he caught a vision of the needed service in foreign fields, and never rested until he had answered that call by giving over forty years of his life to China.

The Nineteen-hundred-thirty-three Howler has endeavored to picture in the following Main Divisions some of the most characteristic events in the life of Yates. He yet lives, and will throughout the ages! We bow in honor of him, the first and most illustrious of our Alma Mater's sons.

Yates Speaking in Shanghai

Foreign Missionaries of Wake Forest College

THE missionary has always been strong in Wake Forest. It is symbolized on the banner of the Philomathean Society, which shows the angel of the Revelation flying over the lands of the earth with a trumpet to his mouth and in his hand a scroll on which is written in Greek the words TO EUTAGELION AJONION, meaning THE EVERLASTING GOSPEL. In 1840, one year after Wake Forest Institute became Wake Forest College, was registered a student, who had already devoted his life to the work of giving the Gospel to the heathen. This student was Matthew Tyson Yates, whose work is featured in this volume of the HOWLER. While a student in the College he organized the Wake Forest Missionary Society, which continues to this day. Graduating in 1846, he was appointed a missionary to China the same year by the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention, formed the year before. Shortly after his graduation he married Miss Eliza Moring of Chatham County. After receiving much attention from the Baptists both of the South and the North the young couple sailed from Boston in December, 1846. After a long voyage around the Horn they reached their destination at Shanghai and took up their work in September, 1847. Here Yates labored for more than forty years, and laying wisely and well the foundations of his work he builded thereon as a wise master-builder, and made the Central China Mission the pride of Southern Baptists. Long before the end of that time his wisdom and ability had brought him recognition as one of the great missionaries of all time, worthy to be mentioned along with Carey and Judson.

Hardly was Yates well located in Shanghai when he began to beg for men to come to assist in the great work of winning China to Christ. Naturally his eyes turned to his own Alma Mater, and he eagerly yearned to have among his fellow-laborers men trained at Wake Forest College. But he had to wait many long years before this desire was satisfied. In his early years in China the sectional troubles that led to the Civil War were engrossing the attention of the young men of his native land, and the call for Christian leaders in North Carolina and in the constantly expanding frontier was so strong that the call to the foreign field was unheeded. Such was the condition too during the period of the Civil War and Reconstruction. In 1869, however, a young man was graduated from the College with valedictory honors who purposed to devote his life to the work in Shanghai. This was Robert Samuel Pritchard, son of Rev. J. L. Pritchard, himself a graduate of Wake Forest College, who fell at his post during a yellow fever epidemic in Wilmington in 1862. After graduation at Wake Forest the young Pritchard spent two years at the University of Virginia. He was making preparation for his departure for Shanghai, when he became a victim of a rapidly developing consumption of the lungs.

It was seventeen years later, in January, 1886, that Yates then an old man, opened his door and his heart to welcome his first helper from Wake Forest. This was D. W. Herring, who had graduated from Wake Forest College in 1882, and further fitted himself for missionary work by a course in the Louisville Seminary. With him was R. T. Bryan, a graduate of the University of North Carolina. From that day a stream of Wake Forest graduates was pouring into the foreign mission fields, so that in a few years Wake Forest College had the distinction of having among her alumni more foreign missionaries than any other institution in the world. Below will be found a list of the names of these Wake Forest missionaries with indication of the places from which they came, the year each left college, and the field of labor of each.

Matthew Tyson Yates, Wake County, 1846, Shanghai, Central China.

Dan Thomas Hurley, Randolph County, 1921, Rumania.

Frank Tennyson Neely Woodward, Davie County, 1921, South China.

James Clarence Anders, M.D., Virginia, 1922, Ogbomoso, Africa.

Robert Gilmer Proctor, Guilford County, 1923, Belge Congo, Africa.

Arthur Samuel Gillespie, Cleveland County, 1926, Interior China.

This is indeed a noble company. Of them the following have departed this life: M. T. Yates, G. P. Bostic, W. E. Crocker, G. W. Greene, C. C. Newton, LeRoy N. Chappell, John T. Anderson, C. L. Powell, Dan T. Hurley—nine in all; leaving thirty-nine (39) still living. Some, like Leonard, are among the ablest foreign missionaries now living; Royall has preached the Gospel and baptized converts in America, Europe, Asia and Africa, even in the River Jordan. Some are at home, some in Darkest Africa; all are serving their Divine Master.

G. W. PASCHALL.

YATES left his home in western Wake County in the year 1838 for the private academy of Mr. G. W. Thompson which was located about three miles from Wake Forest College. After studying there for one year, he taught for a session. It was upon his return to the academy the following year that he surrendered himself for whatever service God might have for him, and at this time Mr. Thompson and Dr. Wait prevailed upon him to go to Woke Forest College. He prepared himself for a missionary to the Chinese.

According in the fall of 1840 we find Yates riding up to the Wake Forest campus on horseback to enroll as a student. The first year he remained with the preparatory group, and then entered into the regular college work. Four years later he graduated, and soon was accepted by the Baptist Foreign Mission Board at Richmond, Virginia as a missionary to China. It was not, however, until September 12, 1847 that he sailed into Shanghai to begin his Herculean task.

AFTER studying for some five years at Wake Forest, Yates and his friends began negotiations with the Baptist Foreign Mission Board located at Richmond. Rev. J. B. Taylor was then Secretary of the Board.

The seemingly poor health of Yates for a time delayed his progress, but soon his health was regained. His doctor was doubtful at one time whether he could remain on the field more than three years at the most, but as we know it was 43 not 3 that he labored in China, and even at the age of 61 he was able to say, "I am as strong as a Hercules and as erect as a Belvedere."

Yates was naturally robust and healthy, being well over six feet tall, and so by the latter part of 1846 he was completely recovered. He made a personal appearance before the Board, and so struck were they by his intelligence and demeanor that he was promptly accepted as a missionary. In accepting this position at $750.00, he declined an offer to preach in Alabama for $2,000.00 per year.

FACULTY

MATTHEW T. YATES being dead yet speaketh. His shadow grows longer with the passing years. He was more than a son of the College; he was a vital force in molding its missionary spirit. His generous giving in lean years is still a part of its economic blood. The story of Yates is an epic of missionary achievement and time after time this story is told in the college chapel. His ashes rest on foreign soil, but his spirit broods over Wake Forest—the place he loved.

Wake Forest is a Christian college, and a Christian college is a missionary college. It continues to hear the Maccabean cry—“Come over and help us”; it continues to equip others for service as it equipped Matthew T. Yates eighty-seven years ago. As long as darkness calls for light, sickness calls for health, and need calls for relief, so long will the sons of Wake Forest answer: “Here am I; send me.”

WHILE Yates was but an eager young student, he was handicapped by a throat trouble which made it uncomfortable for him to bend over his books to study. He would not be overcome by this circumstance, however, and so studied from an upright table.

This same tenacity of purpose was again manifested especially in his first years of work in China. When he arrived on the field, there was no Chinese-English dictionary; so this was the first difficulty to overcome. He immediately began making a suitable dictionary. Having no one but his Chinese cook to assist him, he labored for months at his task. Frequently he would be surrounded by civil uprisings, but he diligently continued his work until his task was completed.

Senior Class Poem

DAYS, months, and years are gliding,
Like mystic dreams, away,
And down life's varied pathway
Their lights and shadows play;
And, often on the present,
Reflected light will fall,
Sometimes, perhaps, a shadow
Comes darkly over all.
O, Time! still hasten onward,
Unheed our smiles and tears,
And gather in thy chariot
The burden of the years.
And with thy scythe, great reaper,
Reap all thy treasures here,
Though every sheaf thou bindest
Is dewed with many a tear.
We bow to thy stern mandate,
Acknowledging thy sway—
Powerless alike to fetter,
Or cause thy wheel to stay.
For onward, every onward,
The years their way pursue
And season after season
Still passes from our view,
We tread the path before us,
Impatient oft to raise
The veil that hides the future
From erring mortals' gaze.
We cannot see the trials
Around the paths we'll try,
Nor catch the hours of pleasure
That for us there may lie.

CLASS POET.

Senior Class History

TIME is fleeting! It seems but yesterday that about one hundred and thirteen new faces invaded the ranks of Wake Forest College and took up their abode here. But when we stop to consider the short time, we are astonished to remember that four years have passed and that it is time to move elsewhere. However, these have not been wasted years. They have been spent in the training of our minds and the developing of our characters. Such has been our inheritance and we take pride in the history which we can leave to be reviewed by others and which in later years will cause us to have a cheerful retrospect of the days spent at this dear college.

It will be remembered that the Freshman class of '29 was comparatively small, but it was composed of the best young men of the states from New Jersey to Georgia. And though our number hasn't increased our group still maintains that fine type which Wake Forest produces. We must admit of some failures; misfortunes have called away more; but thanks to those who have come from other places to join us, Mars Hill, Wingate, Boiling Springs, and Campbell have sent to us men who have so wonderfully joined with us in the effort to learn how to live.

It is needless to say that when we came to Wake Forest we were "green." But we have long since learned that as long as a thing is green it is growing. Entering Wake Forest under the administration of the magnetic personality of Dr. Gaines we began to grow in knowledge and in wisdom. We were the last Freshman class to come under the influence of his friendly and compelling personality. Many things we learned that year, and when it came to a close, we were Sophomores and, therefore, wise and courageous enough to have our say.

The first improvement in which we participated was the abolishing of the Freshmen caps. They had meant a great deal to some of us as Freshmen, but the time of punishment and subjection was ended. A spirit of helpfulness and understanding came to be the guiding force among upperclassmen and Freshmen; so there was no longer any room for hazing or ill-feelings.

The class of '33 has contributed in a large measure to the athletic record of our school. In baseball we established our position the first year by winning the State Championship. Coach Cadell could smile with pride as he saw the abilities of those new men. Especially can I mention Johnnie Hicks, "Lefty" Barnes, "Dug" White, "Flash" Earp, and Faust Johnson. These five men have held their positions through the four years. Again in '32 this club could claim the State Championship title. We have been represented well in other phases of athletics. Jimmy Peters, as captain, promises to lead a winning team on the football field next year, and Charlie Owens successfully filled his place as captain of the '33 basketball team.

And we have had our share in forensic activities. Efficient speakers and leaders have been produced in the Societies, Statesmen's Club, and other organizations. All praise to Leonidas Smith and Scott Buck that in '32 they could claim the title for the Southern Intercollegiate Debate Championship. These men and others like them will ever bring praise to their Alma Mater.

We would also have you notice our scholastic and honorary attainments. While some have lost out in the race, others have made a name for the class. Three of our number, A. V. Washburn, Jr., E. L. Smith, and R. H. Burns, were received into the Golden Bough Honorary Society during their junior year, and since that time seven others of our class have acquired membership. Ten per cent of the members of our class are included in the rating of the highest ten per cent in scholarship of the entire student body. A number of them will receive a magna cum laude written on their diplomas, and Hoyle Lee will be distinguished by having summa cum laude attached to his name—the first in the academic school since 1918.

These are a part of the things that have been done to distinguish the class of 1933. I repeat that the four years have not been wasted. As we leave Wake Forest College may we forget the few failures of the past and look to the future for a place to serve—

"Letting every yesterday become a dream of happiness
And every tomorrow a vision of hope."

Senior Class Prophecy

"If you can look into the seeds of time
And say which grain will grow and which not Speak then to me, who neither beg nor fear
Your favors nor your hate."

AS I sit alone in my room watching the blue smoke as it drifts lazily and languidly upwards toward the ceiling from an overtaxed pipe, I try to picture what Fate has in store for each of my classmates. As I gaze through the dim haze there comes a voice to me. What is this that speaks to me when I should be alone? I try to rise to investigate, but there it is again bidding me rest. Then, as I struggle back into my chair it seems that I am lost in forgetfulness as the weary fingers of Morpheus grasps me. A soft voice, a low voice, yet a voice with a ring of sincerity and charm, possessing a far-way quality that suggest the supernatural, the spiritual, is telling me those things that only a moment ago I so ardently had tried to guess.

A cloud seems to descend even as the voice begins and through its fog I visualize images, faint yet recognizable following the mystic voice and picturing all it says.

Picture your Alma Mater as a modern Co-Ed University with Miss Euphemia Bryan as the Dean of Women and Miss Mary Malone Best as Supervisor of the Woman's Aeronautical School.

Now looking towards the Men's Department we find D. B. Bryan, Jr., and Zou Robinson as Instructors in the Social Science Department.

Upon further investigating we find Roger Johnson as Director of Physical Education.

Then I am led into Dean A. V. Washburn's office and there he informs me that many more of the class of '33 have returned to our Alma Mater to aid in the educating of the youth of North Carolina and other states.

He tells me that E. A. Mitchell is now teaching in the English Department, and R. M. Williamson in the Chemistry. Also I. E. Jackson and G. B. Weaver are teaching in the Department of Religion.

Now the mystic voice bade me to enter the fast electrical Express, which operates between Wake Forest and Raleigh, there I discovered none other than J. V. and F. V. Ellenburg as conductor and chief operator respectively. As I was making reservation for an aeroplane trip to the land of the sunny west, California where the tranquil voice was bidding me go, who should approach me but an old classmate, E. L. Davis, who is Alumni Secretary at Wake Forest.

I was happy to learn that he was to accompany me part of the way, as I thought I might be able to get the low-down on more of my classmates. My first surprise was to learn that the aviator who was to pilot the plane was my former classmate Eddy Callis. Mr. Davis then told me a bit of astonishing news. It was that B. H. Wall after years of travel and adventure in Africa had, because of his interest in children, established an Orphan Home in Knightdale. He was assisted by H. G. Dorsett. Another bit of newsy news was that Bob Stroup was head floor walker in the five and ten cent store at Ramseur, while Joe Ward is now a constable at Franklinton, where he has settled. As for our Ministers, the combination of C. C. Crow and M. H. Tadlock in the Evangelistic world has produced a sensation throughout the South. Bill Huggins has established a restaurant at Rich Square, known as "The Dew Drop Inn." Jimmie Vinson after receiving an appointment as Sanitary Inspector to Hongkong, China, is making a howling success. Four members of the class have made their fortunes and reputations in improvements in certain patent medicines: H. A. Branch, with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; S. B. Brandon, with Fountain of Youth Oil; C. A. Rouse, with Pink Pills for Pale People; and M. M. Hicks with Hick's Bone and Nerve Liniment. Much to my regret Mr. Davis was forced to leave me, in order to attend an alumni meeting at Tulsa, Okla.

Having no one to chat with further I settled down to enjoy the television attachment throughout the remainder of the trip. The first was a news flash that came from the University of Jibuti, Abyssinia, where Mr. Gilmer Cross was delivering the Presidential address. Mr. Cross stated that Mr. W. W. Cogdill was making great progress in the field of Chemistry also that the Jibuti football team had gone through the season undefeated in African circles under the able coaching of James E. Peters. The next news flash was from Washington, D. C., in which I learned that Senator Addison Hewlett had introduced a bill to prohibit college students from soliciting aeroplane rides. Then there flashed on the screen a play, "One Woman's Way," written by William Day and featuring S. B. Davis.

After a solo number by H. D. White entitled, "The Second Divorce," from station B-U-N-K owned and operated by J. W. Howell, I took the newspaper, The Spirit of the Press, edited by J. F. Matthews, and began to scan the pages. The first thing that attracted my attention was that George Hardon had received special recognition from the Government for his charity work in establishing a home for homeless dogs and cats. Another item was that Stedman Kitchin had not been heard from since his attempt last week to fly to the moon. I also was surprised to learn that R. L. Painter was a successful editor of the Farm Life Magazine of Banner Elk, and that W. L. Perry had discovered a solution of Iodine to prevent static in Television.

Suddenly the motors ceased and I knew that I had reached my destination. So this was Los Angeles, California, where the mystic voice was sending me to see the famous E. L. Smith and his Broncho-Busters in what was to be the final action of the cowboys as they were to be replaced by aeroplanes in cattle round-ups.

Slowly the dreary fingers of Morpheus slipped from me and I found myself gazing dazedly at the last few lines of Whittier's, Maude Muller. . . .

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these, it might have been."

CLASS PROPHECY.

Last Will and Testament

WE, the Senior class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-three, being of sound mind and healthy body, realizing the exigency of time and the multiplicity of burdens which will overwhelm us as we step out into the misty vales of the future, do hereby make this our Last Will and Testament, revoking and declaring null and void any and all wills hitherto made and executed by us.

As for the estate which has been added to us by hook or crook in the course of our sojourn at Wake Forest, we make the following disposition:

ITEM 1

To our Alma Mater we leave our continued love and devotion in return for her service to ourselves, our state and our nation.

ITEM 2

To the faculty we give and bequeath our complete forgiveness for all they have done to us, trusting that our forgiveness will exert influence toward a restful conscience and mercy on those who follow us.

ITEM 3

To the incoming Senior class we give and bequeath our mantles of dignity and our chapel seats, hoping they will use both more than we did.

ITEM 4

To the incoming Junior class we give and bequeath all mural paintings adorning the various dorms, classrooms, etc., including sketches, manuscripts, and invitations to the CUE BALL CLUB.

ITEM 5

To the incoming Sophomore class we give and bequeath any and all excuse slips which they may be able to collect, hoping they may continue to be as useful in the future as they have been in the past.

ITEM 6

To the incoming Freshman class we give and bequeath privilege of grabbing off anything that no one else wants, hoping that class is more successful in their verdant stage than they were in avoiding the SOPHIS!

ITEM 7

To the future medical classes at Wake Forest we give and bequeath our congratulations on their new building, at the same time trusting that to it will be added other buildings which the students are in need of.

ITEM 8

To the debate squad, in consequence of our witnessing a successful four year blow of "bovine effervescence," we give and bequeath our hopes that their efforts will continue to be successful and that they will receive merited support from the student body and faculty.

ITEM 9

To the incoming practice teachers we give and bequeath the privilege of having more than one Sunday suit to meet the requirement as specified by the Practice Teaching Department.

ITEM 10

To the future lawyers of Wake Forest College we give and bequeath a further study of Law to enable them to put in use their licenses after they have once obtained them.

ITEM 11

We give and bequeath to the Ministers of Wake Forest the privilege of listening to the lectures of inspiration that Dr. Cullom gives with as much interest as the ministers of the past have done.

ITEM 12

To the band of our college we give and bequeath a place of security for their musical instruments where thieves "will not break through nor steal."

ITEM 13

To the prospective athletes we give and bequeath a passing grade on twenty-four hours work, so that they will make the school eligible for the Southern Conference rating.

ITEM 14

To the fraternities we give and bequeath a year round weak-end with all the added attractions.

ITEM 15

To the Migratory Chapter of Alpha Sigma Rho (amalgamated sons of rest) we give and bequeath as a destination for their thumbing trips, the front seats of the Capital City municipal court, provided they shall engage as attorney some member to the Wake Forest Law School who is in despair of getting "a case."

ITEM 16

To the heads of the various college publications we give and bequeath the privilege of coaching their lanes, like Don Quixote, at any and everything which claims their eye, trusting that tact and discretion will never mar their excellence.

ITEM 17

We give and bequeath our undying gratitude to anyone who will be responsible for having the Wake Forest Chapel seats and the Meredith "Bird Cage" seats upholstered.

ITEM 18

As an amendment to Item 5 we wish to reconsider and in consequence of what must have been their sincere desire for our moral, physical, spiritual, and intellectual development, we wish to pledge to the faculty our gratitude and support, hoping that we can in some measure return their diligence toward us.

ITEM 19

To Professor J. L. Memory, Jr., we give and bequeath any and all our old love letters, hoping that he may some day construct from them a news story that will rate BOX CAR HEADLINES.

ITEM 20

To the co-eds we give and bequeath the privilege of having more companions of their own sex in the near future.

ITEM 21

To our parents, whose sacrifices and prayers have aided us so much in the rocky road to a diploma, we give and bequeath our hopes that we may in some way live up to their expectations of us and repay them with love and gratitude.

ITEM 22

To anyone who may feel left out we give and bequeath our heartfelt sympathy, regards, and best wishes.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, we the Class of "Thirty-three," the testators, have to this, our will, set our hand and seal, this, the ninth of February, anno domini, one thousand nine hundred thirty-three.

Junior Class Poem

THE four years' race is nearly won,
The conquerors are grinning,
The race itself was lots of fun
But sweeter for the winning.

And we who have another year
To run are glad—believe it;
We love this track, but then we fear
We'll sorrow when we leave it.

So let us make the most of this
And store up pleasant memories,
For now we have the actual bliss,
Tomorrow only rhapsodies.

T. P.

History of the Junior Class

WE the members of the class of '34 deem ourselves very fortunate in having been the first class to begin its college career under our beloved president, Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin. We were 240 in number, coming from almost every state on the Atlantic Seaboard, and some were from the mid-western states.

We first assembled on the fifteen day of September, 1930. We were ready to tackle any and everything; but, alas, after the first few preliminaries we realized that we'd be the ones tackled. The Bursar took our money, we didn't know how to burn so we just had to stay here. Of course we had to attend all car courts, buy chapel tickets and radiator keys. They made us sing a certain little song until finally we were thoroughly convinced that nobody knew how green we really were. All this wasn't so bad until we had to don a dinky little cap which automatically put us on the spot. Next we were introduced to a new art, that of "buttoning." We were always getting calls for request numbers for the different models of this highly perfected art. This taught us not to be so fresh as is shown by the fact that only nineteen of us were taken into the "cue-ball club." We chose as officers of our class that year: President, Harry Sell; Vice President, Wallace Temple; Secretary, John Cole.

One hundred and sixty-three of us came back in our Sophomore year. We were much wiser and well equipped to start the frosh off right. That year our officers were: President, D. W. Martin; Vice President, George McManus, and Secretary, George Gorinto.

By the time we became Juniors we really became serious about our work because we realized that we had only two more years left in which to prepare ourselves for that treacherous voyage across the sea of life. Our officers this year are: President, G. F. Harding; Vice President, A. E. Curle, Jr.; Secretary, S. T. Bennett, Jr.

We have some among our group who have distinguished themselves along their respective lines: In football we have Russell, Wilson, Shum, Swing, Hack Malloy and Hood. On the basketball court we have Hack Malloy, Mulhern and Swing. On the 1932 championship baseball nine we contributed Click Bunting and Mulhern. The Biology assistants this year were Juniors and two if the editors of our three publications came from the original '34 class. We have also contributed writers and debaters of no mean ability.

As the class to graduate in the year of the one hundredth anniversary of Dear Old Wake, we hope that with her new buildings, equipment and enlarged student body, she will be better fitted to carry out in a larger and finer way her motto, Pro Humanite.

Sophomore Class Poem

THE fields lie fallow and the harvest yields
No crop of gold; yet we have gleaned this year
Enough by sweating in the arid fields
To come again in search of wisdom here.
What good our sacrifice unless we say
That only in the mind is there content?
We've seen a nation gamble all the day
And weep at evening when the chips were spent.
Beyond the reach of folly there are these:
The urge to understand mankind, to know
The world, the love of music and of trees
That stays with us no matter where we go.
For always are the flowers of the brain
Safe from the scorching sun and beating rain

History of the Sophomore Class

AS I begin to write the History of the Class of '35 my mind drifts slowly back over the events and happenings of two short years. It is somewhat like reading an old diary. We turn back the pages to find on the first that we arrived here one hot, sultry, September day each armed with a high school diploma and each with a single purpose—to get a college education. The first few days were spent matriculating, and meeting members of the Faculty, and becoming acquainted with those with whom we were to associate for the next four years. There followed then that one period of every Freshman's life when he is the "Lord of the Campus," the Fraternity rushing season. For several weeks we were wine and dined and drunk to. A number of men then took the secret and memorable vows of that group with which he would be identified for the remainder of his college days. Those were happy times compared to those that followed.

We were average Frosh and not unlike average Frosh were not immune to stories of haircutting by the "Old Heads." Consequently, it was a rare thing to meet a Freshman unaccompanied by an upper-classman after the last lingering rays of sunlight had departed over the hills. Most of us were fortunate in that we escaped the wild hazing escapades and the experience of being involuntarily initiated into the "Royal and Mystic Order of the Cue Ball. On the other hand, however, we did not escape being suckers to "hair insurance" and "chapel tickets" and "bath tickets" and other schemes of nefarious upper-classmen who took advantage of our youth and ignorance in regard to certain affairs. In the early part of September we elected the officers of the class of '35 who were to lead us through the trials and tribulations of Freshman life. Rivers Hanson of Wilmington, a truly fine fellow, was elected President after an uproarious campaign defeating George Griffin and C. U. Harris. To the office of Secretary was elected Henry Liles; C. B. Davis was made Treasurer, Jack Murchison, Legislator, and John Porter, Poet.

In the early part of the first semester the Student Council deemed it necessary to impose exceedingly strict and rather unjust rules on us. The most bothersome of these was the wearing of a small, yellow bow tie at all times except Sunday together with the regulation Freshman Cap. Incidentally, the Student Council saw the folly of these rules and in the early part of the spring both the caps and the ties were abolished once and for all.

In the field of literary activities members of the class played a large and important part, especially on the Debating Team, the Literary Societies, and on the Student publications. In the field of athletics the football team tied with "State" for the championship while the basketball and baseball teams had fairly successful seasons. Various members of the class became connected with either literary or athletic activities and not a small number became prominent in the Religious work of the school and Church.

Finally, after what seemed to be an interminably long time the year came to an end and the first class of the second century of the glorious life of this institution found themselves to be no longer Freshman but Sophomores.

After three months of leisure and work we journeyed back to Wake Forest to renew friendships and swap tales and during odd moments spend a little time on our books. The class officers who were elected in May were William Voliva, President; V. B. Gavin, Vice President; G. P. Hendricks, Secretary; R. T. Wilder, Treasurer; Jack Murchison, Student Councilman; J. F. Fletcher, Legislator; John Porter, Poet; and C. U. Harris, Historian.

This year, like last, members of the class took active parts in all the campus activities. In athletics practically the entire football team was made up of Sophomores among whom the more prominent are Wall, Hardee, Swan, Falkenberg, Myers, Holton, Clark, and DeAngelis. In basketball Clark was outstanding and although the baseball season has not yet begun at the time of this writing it is certain that quite a few of our number will be on that squad. On the tennis team there is Fletcher, Hanson, and Wilkinson, and several more on the track and golf teams.

In the literary societies the Sophomores are the mainstays and the same is true in regard to the debating squad, Ministerial Class, B. Y. P. U., Sunday School, and clubs and organizations of every type.

And now, as the second year of our college lives is rapidly drawing to a close we find ourselves looking to the future a bit more sophisticated and serious than we were a year ago striving a bit more earnestly to reach the goal of goals and to have in our proud possession its majestic symbol—the Diploma.

Freshman Class Poem

WE have finished the first lap—our freshman year,
No more shall we be ruled or oppressed as we've been;

We shall now be dignified as are all sophomores,

We'll be rough, we'll be barbers—we'll be men,

Many things has the year brought forth to us:

Hardships and failures—luck and success;

Most of us have a changed view on life—

Shall our views further change, as we progress?

Some learning has seeped into our inexperienced heads

We've taken up our courses in science and in arts;

We've learned to live, to associate with men,

And to love Wake Forest with all our hearts.

May we not fall prey to discouragement, men,

May we pursue our course to the crest;

We have chosen our path to the high-road of life,

By this road we may find life at its best.

Freshman Class History

THE largest freshman class in the history of Wake Forest College went through the registration mill on September 12, 1932; two hundred and twenty-six of the freshest that ever "buttoned" for an upper-classman or shined a soph's shoes.

The first of our lessons was the first of all frosh lessons; we were taught that we were "lowly worms," whose main purpose was to act as such. Maybe we really enjoyed our freshman year; at least, we'll enjoy our soph year.

We were a privileged frosh class; the customary identifying cap was abolished this year, and some of us even wore knickers with impunity.

Some of us joined fraternities, a few as pledges and the more fortunate ones as active members. The story is told of one freshman who, in indicating his choice of fraternities, chose the Golden Bough; and of another who wanted to join some "educational fraternity."

Stumbling blocks were shoved under our feet by wellmeaning professors. Chemistry students got the atomic theory; the French department gave us the irregular verbs and idioms; religion brought Docetic Manifestations and so on; Greek and Latin courses were the pitfalls of many of us; yet a large number of us passed.

In sports, the frosh showed good possibilities, with several of the players potential stars. Out of five football games with Oak Ridge, William and Mary, E. C. T. C., Duke, and Louisburg, the frosh team were victorious twice, and at the time of this writing, the basketball team had won more than half their contests.

We went through a year of study, punctuated by such rollicking good times as the fraternity dances and the house party. We learned a good deal—more, perhaps, than we realize—about college life from "bull sessions." We have tried to learn the most important lesson that college life teaches—how to act on our own initiative. And we had a swell time doing it.

Three or four years from now, the ones of us who are fortunate enough to graduate will, I suppose, look back on our freshman year and smile to ourselves like old grandfathers watching their grandchildren play, and wish we were freshmen again. But that is all in the future. Right now we are looking forward to sophomore ideals and sophomore privileges. To most of us, freshman life is a thing of the past.

Medical Class History

DURING the years 1908-1913 the proverbial stork had many a troublesome load, and in spite of protests from the graves of seers and rods of fate, we were born. We realize now that our lives flew by uneventfully—the balmy, sunny days of Innocence. In the Fall of 1931 we came to Wake Forest as an ambitious assortment of Southern boys (with two or three Yankee exceptions); hopeful, composed, confident, before long, bewildered. Those first days were lovely, looking through the "Med" building, wondering at the aged old structure through whose portals have come men who have indelibly inscribed their names in medical history. We entered then with hopes and aspirations peculiar to freshmen in general. We are now, we hope, to leave with some few of our desires realized. This main building is being augmented now by a new, but no nobler, building, whose stark new walls will be mellowed by future winds and rains; and eager feet will wear the freshness of the stairs, so that it too will become sanctified by generations of laboring students.

But sunny skies are never lasting, and a big, black, cumulus cloud was slowly but surely gathering above our heads. We went scurrying hither and yon in search of shelter, every one laden with a huge object, Cunningham's Anatomy Book. We were now embarked on the sea of anatomical knowledge. With scalpels, probes, and forceps we started to work, feigning bravery, as we stripped of the scalps of burly cadavers. The thundering sound of "Major" Vann's voice, clear, booming, and firm directed us in our maneuvers. The cloud finally burst when he started quizzing one day, and general tachycardia prevailed.

As exams approached tense excitement reigned. We had reached the nadir of our student life. Our anxiety had reached its zenith. Yet the apprehension somewhat subsided as we started these dreaded tasks, and later, with aching wrists, that even taking Dr. Kings notes had not sufficiently toughened, our confidence returned—we were really learning something. Our minds had blossomed with the spring, drinking in the holy nectar of knowledge as the buds and plants drink the sweet showers of April.

Our sophomore year in medicine began, and with happy hearts we returned to school filled with anticipation although some misgivings were felt, for out of the thirty-one who had started the fall before, only twenty-nine remained, and we wondered would more drop out still. Sickness claimed another member before that year passed; twenty-eight were left.

In pathology we learned to like Dr. Carpenter and appreciate the all-important pioneer work he is doing. We studied the minute structure of our body parts after the relentless hand of Necrosis had taken his toll. Pathology, we all agreed, was our most interesting science—at times it was gruesome.

Dr. Mackie spent many a day of arduous toil, vainly endeavoring to put across to our befuddled minds the various laws of nature that were involved in the simple contractions of the muscles in the legs of his pet frogs. He possessed an uncanny intuition for knowing exactly what each part of these tiny amphibians would do when properly pithed and stimulated. His dry witticism enlivened the atmosphere during all his work. From him we learned also of drugs galore, most of which we hope to use some day, although they are at present only myths to us.

We regret that we have not had more lectures from our beloved dean of the Med school and president of the college. His lectures during our first year were helpful and inspirational as well as very enjoyable.

Efficiency, fairness, system, and a juggernaut-like routine characterizes our Med school. We have spent many happy hours, stolen many hurried smokes as we took a few moments from class, and have had frequent "post-mortems" on examinations just taken. We have each experienced the height and depths of scholastic achievement or failure. Through generations this unit of Wake Forest College has drawn to itself the most eminent of the profession. We trust that in years to come some of our number will be among that honored list.

History of the Law Class

AND behold! It came to pass that in the ninth month of the year nineteen hundred and thirty-one the good ship, Wake Forest, began its thirty-eighth voyage upon the high seas of legality.

In command of this ship was an aged and renowned seaman, Needham of the House of Gully, who had guided this same ship through turbulent water during its entire existence. As his mates there were men of equal caliber, Robert Bruce of the House of White and Edgar of the House of Timberlake. The crew was a heterogeneous one, consisting of men from both far and near. Out of their midst they chose Archie of the House of Qualls to lead them on this pilgrimage. The ever faithful "brindle bull" named "Ben" was the mascot of this crew.

The ship sailed the seas of Blackstone, Domestic Relations and Contract. The voyage was uneventful although at times the waters were rough. At intervals of six weeks those in command subjected the crew to severe cross-examinations in regard to their knowledge. However the majority always acquitted themselves creditably.

During this voyage the more experienced of the crew manned a lifeboat and under the command and guidance of their chief cruised the waters of the Supreme Court. And it came to pass that when the good ship came into port after four and a half months at sea, these men were summoned before the high tribunal of legal seamen to give an account of themselves. This was a severe test, and they were sore afraid. But when the ordeal was over their hearts rejoiced, for they were then lawyers, known sometimes to their cohorts as barristers.

Again the old ship went to sea upon the waters of Crime, Constitution, Wills and Torts. In the fifth month Wake Forest was again in port. This time the crew was given a vacation. Most of them took advantage of this opportunity to rest from their labor.

However, many of the crew stayed with ship in the harbor of the Supreme Court. The heat was intense and had it not been for the cooling waters of "Golf Pond" and the ever fragrant magnolias, they could not have endured. When the climax of all this heat and toil came, the mighty Board of Examiners approved of this group. In consequence they were made legal seamen under the State of North Carolina.

After the heat had begun its retreat and autumn time was near, the old crew reassembled itself. Some were discouraged and did not return. Others had entered another school known as the "University of Hard Knocks," but there were men equally as brave to take their places at the oars. It was indeed a happy crew that moved this ancient craft.

This time another member of the crew was chosen as leader. He was capable and liked by all, a man slight of stature yet broad of mind. His mother called him Thomas Fitzgerald, and he came from the House of Davis.

The commanders of previous voyages were there standing ever faithful by their post of duty. But behold! Another man is added to the staff of officers. Beverly of the House of Lake, a man borned in the law, has come to give us aid. He was given control of the Court of Moot where young legal lights sought to propose themselves for the abyss and eddies of legal waters.

This time the voyage was very much like the first—but the sea was rough and there was little calm. The crew found Negotiable Instruments, Civil Procedure, Equity and Real Property enough to puzzle the most experienced seamen.

It came to pass that when the vessel was again in port, the fruits of toil were realized. Twenty-one members of the crew were made licensed seamen by this ancient and worthy tribunal hereinbefore mentioned. The Supreme Court is becoming more particular and severe. This is another star in the crown of Wake Forest.

And now another voyage nears the end. The crew is weary after cruising in the turbulent waters of Evidence, Partnerships, Insurance, Corporations, Damages and Suretyship. Most of the crew hope to obtain a certificate of release known as the degree of Bachelor of Laws; others require still another voyage.

Leaving Wake Forest marks only the beginning of real legal seamanship. Awaiting this crew is the greatest sea upon which mankind can sail—the sea of Life. The sailing will not be easy on this voyage. Storms will assail them, often threatening defeat and destruction. But for him who keeps his shoulder to the wheel and knows no defeat, there awaits a crown of success to adorn his brow; and the worthy ship, Wake Forest, will make voyage after voyage training young men for one of the most honorable professions known to man, the practice of the law.

THE HISTORIAN.

YATES was ever an efficient organizer. During his college career, he organized a music class which he conducted himself. He was a very good singer, and his class reached an enrollment of approximately forty. For each pupil he received five dollars. The total income from this work more than paid his college expenses.

Upon reaching Shanghai and organizing a church, he at once began to make plans for the erection of a building. Personally he supervised the construction in every detail. He was a most versatile man, which fact made him exceedingly suitable for a missionary.

Wake Forest's Southern Championship in Debate Unchallenged

WAKE FOREST has just closed another successful forensic season. The Old Gold and Black speakers engaged in thirty-three inter-collegiate debates and in eight other forensic contests. Of the total number of debates Wake Forest won fourteen and lost six. This makes an average of 70 per cent wins, a slight increase over last year's average. The remainder of the schedule was filled with non-decision debates.

In addition to the debate schedule there were other contests in extempore speaking, oratory and after-dinner speaking. In the American Legion oratory contest, a state affair, Charles U. Harris placed third for Wake Forest. In the oratory contest sponsored by the South Atlantic province of Pi Kappa Delta, W. Scott Buck placed first, defeating the "N. C. State terror," Lonnie Knott. In a similar contest at the tournament sponsored by the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech, Donald Myers was awarded the decision after tying with Knott. In extempore speaking at the Pi Kappa Delta Tournament E. Leonidas Smith received second place. Also at the Southern Tournament Smith tied with Knott in the same contest and lost the decision by 7/100 of a point. In the after dinner speaking Buck placed second at the South Atlantic Tournament and Myers placed second at the Southern Tournament.

This year twelve men have taken part in intercollegiate forensic activities. They are:

J. NELSON JARRETT
DONALD G. MYERS
W. SCOTT BUCK
E. LEONIDAS SMITH
W. O. ROSSER
R. O. POPLIN

H. C. COX
M. H. KENDALL
CHARLES U. HARRIS
J. C. MURCHISON
R. D. BROWN
A. P. GODWIN

Because of a cut in the appropriation for forensic endeavor the size of the debate schedule was not quite that of last year, and the teams did not cover as much mileage. Also most of the debates away from the campus were in tournaments. However, it has been found that Wake Forest teams get more support at tournaments than they are accustomed to at home. Let's try giving them a little more.

This year the forensic squad engaged in two tournaments. One of these, at Asheville, was the provincial tournament for the South Atlantic states, sponsored by the national debate fraternity, Pi Kappa Delta. In this tournament Wake Forest ranked second to Asheville Teachers College in the debating. We won the oratory contest and placed second in after-dinner speaking and extempore speaking.

One Hundred Seventy-six

At Berea, Kentucky, in the tournament sponsored by the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech, Wake Forest tied with the University of Florida and N. C. State College for first in debating. It so happened that in this tournament Wake Forest was the defending champion team and also in this tournament had beaten both the other schools. We had beaten State four times out of five this year and had beaten Florida, who had also been beaten by State. So the Wake Forest team has still the distinction of being champions of the South in debate. In this tournament we placed first in oratory, tied for first in extempore speaking and placed second in after-dinner speaking.

At these tournaments contacts have been made which will prove valuable for the school, and for the men who have made the trips. The reputation of Wake Forest has been enhanced by the good sportsmanship which the representatives have shown on every occasion and by the enviable record which the debate squad has made. It is highly improbable that any other school in the nation has traveled more miles, given more men experience, won more contests, and established a better reputation for clean, hard competition than has Wake Forest.

Wake Forest is the only school which is regularly recognized in debating circles as a leading challenger, which does not have a regular speech department and at least one full time man in that department. A greater part of the phenomenal success of the Wake Forest Debate teams in the last few years of tournament debating is due to Dr. Quisenberry, who while carrying his full load of academic courses, has given himself whole-heartedly to the continuance of the tradition that a Wake Forest man should be able to think clean and fast, and talk from his feet fairly and with conviction. Dr. Quisenberry is unrequited for this service at Wake Forest except for the devotion of the men who have worked under his guidance. Proof of the fact that his leadership is recognized is his re-election to the office of Governor of the South Atlantic Province of Pi Kappa Delta, and his election to the office of Vice President of the Southern Association of Teachers of Speech, in charge of forensic activities in N. C.

Wake Forest has debated in decision contests only schools of reputation and importance. Among these we might include:

N. C. State
Berea College
Asheville Teachers
Rollins College
University of South Carolina
Boston University
Furman University
Millsaps College

Lynchburg College

Society Day—Founder's Day

AS Wake Forest College approaches the end of her first century each tradition of her glorious past, and every greatness of her present take on new meaning. Again the glamour of Society Day, with the homecoming of the alumni, and the enthusiastic welcoming of new friends made the campus the scene of another generation rejoicing in the long-standing pride of its Literary Societies.

The program for November 11, 1932 began with a morning debate on the query: Resolved, "That the United States should adopt the British system of radio broadcast." The affirmative was upheld by the Euzelians, Donald G. Myers and J. Winston Pearce, and the negative side by W. Scott Buck and E. Leonidas Smith, Philomathesians. Both sides presented interesting argument, but the judges decided in favor of the negative.

The football game with Carson-Newman in the afternoon provided another reason for display of college spirit—both for the spectators and for the players who sustained injuries in the game. Wake Forest's 20-6 victory made the afternoon's entertainment perfect.

After the game refreshments seemed entirely in order, and the delicious banquet at Miss Jo's was thoroughly enjoyed by the students and their lady friends. Gordon Grant, Society Day President, was toastmaster for the occasion, playing that role in his usual manner—a mixture of dignity and burlesque, that was, to say the least, interesting.

The slow walk across the campus to Wingate Memorial Hall succeeded in finally making up audience for the orations. Gordon Grant presided, and George J. Griffin, the secretary for the day, announced the speakers. The judges decided in favor of Charles U. Harris, voting second and third places to J. Glenn Blackburn and W. O. Rosser, respectively. An informal reception in the gymnasium completed the program.

The program for Anniversary, January 31, 1933, celebrating the ninety-ninth birthday of the founding of Wake Forest College was marked by the dignity and simplicity that usually surrounds such an activity. The debate at two-thirty, Resolved, "That the Brummitt proposal to balance the budget should be adopted in North Carolina," was won by the negative team of the two Philomathesians, W. Scott Buck and E. Leonidas Smith. Their Euzelian opponents were Charles U. Harris and W. O. Rosser. The officers for the day were Donald G. Myers, President, and Woodrow Peterson, Secretary. A. P. Godwin substituted as secretary at the evening program.

Under Dr. Isbell's direction the College band added variety and interest to an already varied day by the occasional music between the events of the night.

The Founder's Day address, delivered by the Hon. J. M. Broughton, contained the usual eulogies of the college, as well as some interesting excerpts from the history of the North Carolina General Assembly concerning the granting to the "Wake Forest Institute" Charter. The exercises ended with a benediction by Rev. Mr. Easley, the Chaplain.

Such days as these add interest to the year's college work, and serve to remind those who know Wake Forest that they may well be proud of her.

Ministerial Class History

WE do not claim to be the best class in the history of the college; neither do we say that it is the largest and best looking. There are in the ministerial class 73 men who have heard the call of God like Andrew and Peter and are preparing themselves for the work of the kingdom of God at home and abroad. These men are getting more than knowledge of how to preach. They are taking courses that help give them poise and stability, and that equip them for leadership as well as pastoral duties.

Aside from regular routine of class work of each individual member, the class meets on Wednesday night of each week. At these meetings Dr. Cullom lectures upon some practical subject dealing with the ministers problems.

It is our purpose to meet our college brothers on a common level, and set aside all of the misconceptions that may exist concerning the class. Among our number are students, writers, debaters, orators, and musicians. In every phase of college activity our number mingles freely.

The class is deeply indebted to our president I. B. Jackson, for leadership, and to our faithful instructor Dr. W. R. Cullom. These men have done much toward deepening the spirituality of the members and enriching their lives by their example and guidance.

AS YATES was active in boyhood on the North Carolina farm, so was he actively engaged in service in later life. If he had not learned to endure hardness while still very young, it is a question whether he could have endured and labored as he did for more than forty years in China. His errands of mercy in this foreign field of service taxed his strength and courage, but he endured unto the end. Neither war nor pestilence, fear nor favor stayed him from pursuing his duty.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

VARSIY FOOTBALL, 1932

GREEN (end)—Captain Bill Green was truly a fine representative for the 1932 Wake Forest College football team. He made an end that was well rounded. In covering punts he was the first to get there. Then, too, it took more than one man to take him out of a play. Bill could snag a forward pass anywhere within his reach. He was indispensable to the team.

OWEN (guard)—Charlie was better this year than his previous years on the varsity. By his backing up of the line on the defense he gave it unmeasurable strength and stability. If the runner got as far as him, then they were sure to be retarded there. However, his good playing was by no means limited to this phase of his duties as a guard.

WALL (quarter)—Zeno was the signal caller for the Demon Deacon football team. With him calling out the signals the team seemed to fight with renewed strength. Although weighing only 137 pounds, he could step off for wide end runs by reason of his swiftness and sidestepping. He made an excellent safety man. Don't forget his run against State during Fair Week.

PETERS (half)—"Frosty," being so short might have seemed to travel faster than he was, but even then it was plenty fast. Peters was a hard charging back and that little fellow had power behind his short wellbuilt body. He could circle a dime and could shake off many tacklers by his hard pumping legs.

HARRIE (end)—Slade played his first season on the varsity and a successful player he turned out to be after such brief experience. As a newcomer he held down his end like a veteran. Being on the receiving end of forward passes he developed into an excellent receiver. He killed many an end run by clamping the ball carrier.

MALLOY (center)—"Hack" was as good in football as he is in basketball. As a pivot man he fitted well into Miller's machine. This is the first year that he has played this position and did fine work in the center of the line. When he got his hands on a man that was the close of that play. His ability and experience made him a standby of the team.

SWAN (tackle)—Pat is a solid mass of muscle that tips the scale at 220 pounds, and was the heaviest man on the team. With his ability and weight, his side of the line was well accounted for. When the loud speaker announced that the runner had been brought down by Swan, one would be heard to exclaim, "I am sorry for that fellow!"

GRANT (tackle)—Gordon was one of the best tackles in this State during the past year. You had to see him in action before you could pass judgment on his tackling. There was no running over him and on the offensive he would open holes wide enough for the entire backfield to pass through. Although he was hurt in the South Carolina game at Charlotte he was not laid up for the season.

WILSON (half)—Dunc proved to be the terror of opposing teams. He was very hard to stop and even then he kept right on digging. He was the longest yard gainer for the Baptists. He just burned up the gridiron when he once got started. He was a hard tackler on defensive, and very few passes were ever completed in his territory.

LAWHORN (full)—In this boy we have a truly good fullback. He was very adept at passing, running, and punting. He, along with Ed Shinn, was one of the triple threat men in the Deacon backfield. He was sometimes on the receiving end of a forward pass which meant ground gainage. He fitted into the backfield although this is his first year on the first string.

DE ANGELIS (guard)—Although weighing only 165 pounds, he made up for his lack of weight by his incessant fighting. He played a hard, clean game and was in every play around his side of the line. On the offensive he was capable of taking out his man quickly and for good. He was a trusted and dependable linesman.

CHERRY (tackle)—This is the giant of the line. In height he is well over six feet and in weight he exceeds 200 pounds. He is a well proportioned tackler and a constant menace to the opposing backfield. And, believe you me, when he got hold of a tackler that was the end of that episode.

KESSLER (guard)—"Tuy" is not as little as his name would imply and much more competent than a fellow of a small stature. Kessler, was able to turn his opposition to right and left and concentrate on the runner. His blocking and driving were very good and meant a great deal toward the success of the team.

HOOD (guard)—In Hood we had a guard that knew what to do and did just that. In a game he makes excellent use of his training. He was a difficult man to dislodge from his position and never gave up. He stuck in there and fought, and kept on fighting.

HICKS (tackle)—Here is a hard working player. He was very faithful to the team and this year marks the finish of his football career. But he will be remembered for those qualities that marked him as a true Wake Forest player and a good tackler.

SMITH (quarter)—"Leaky" would call signals with such confidence that his voice unnerved his opponents. Smith was a competent quarterback and had all the fine qualities that are prerequisites to the moulding of an efficient field general.

MYERS (full)—In him we have a fullback that conforms to all the standards of a good man for that position. He has the build for that position, being stocky. He has the drive that is so essential for a man in playing this post. He also, has the blocking and tackling ability that make him a well rounded fullback.

FALKENBURG (tackle)—Here is another one of the Deacon's Big Boys. Weighing over 200 pounds he helps to balance the forward line of the Baptists. He is a participant in every play over his side of the line. He is a hard fellow to "take out." If you don't believe ask one of his opponents.

HOLTON (quarter)—In Dave we had a field general that knew how to run the team. He knew to run a certain play, where to run it, and did his share in making that play a success. A hard fighting quarterback and a good safety man he will undoubtedly see much service in the coming years.

SWING (end)—"Stork" is certainly built for this position. He is tall and lanky. With his advantage of height and reach he is able to bring down many passes that would otherwise be grounded. He is a high and fast stepper and was cut out for an end position.

SHINN (half)—"Ed" is the bronzed halfback from sunny Texas. He is a quiet boy but as hard a fighter and as clean a player as you may expect to find anywhere. He has a drive that will carry him through the line. His Pass to Russell, in the South Carolina game resulted in a victory for Wake Forest.

RUSSELL (half)—"Whitey" is certainly a man, although by appearances one might take him for a young boy. He plays his position well. As a receiver he was the Deacon's best and it was his jaunt at Charlotte that gave us the edge over the powerful South Carolina team, and enabled us to win by a score of 6-0.

CLARK (center)—A scrapping fellow in the Deacon line was, Clark. Playing the pivot position he did a complimentary job of it at that position. He had a hard, true, spiral pass from center and after releasing the ball he shot into the opposing line like a released spring.

DEACONS SPRING SURPRISE ON TAR HEELS

The Wake Forest football team opened their 1932 season with Carolina, at Chapel Hill, holding them to a scoreless tie. The Deacon aggregation, composed of a majority of sophomores, played heads up football throughout the entire game and thwarted all Tar Heel threats. The strong Tar Heel team could not crumple the fighting Demon Deacon line nor could they score by resorting to aerial tactics. Carolina threatened in the second period after Chandler, Phipps, and Croom advanced the ball within the shadow of the goal, only to be held to a standstill by the stalwart line of the Deacons. Zeno Wall, Deacon quarterback, piloted the team in a winning fashion, while Gordon Grant, able tackle, was outstanding in the line.

WAKE FOREST DOWNS SOUTH CAROLINA 6-0

The defensive Deacon eleven changed tactics against the highly rated South Carolina team, in Charlotte, submerging them 6-0, before a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators. A forward pass from "Ed" Shinn to "Whitey" Russell counted for the lone touchdown. The Gamecocks were held in check by the Deacons throughout the four quarters. In futile attempts the losers tried pass after pass. Lawhorn and Wall were also very prominent in the Deacon backfield while in the line Captain Green held down his end very successfully.

PAIR WEEK ENCOUNTER ENDS IN DEADLOCK

Although Wake Forest received eight first downs to five for State, neither team was able to carry the piekin over the opponents' goal line. The Deacons' main threat came when Zeno Wall, flashy little quarterback, made the only long run for the Deacons. He crossed the line of scrimmage behind beautiful interference and threaded his way through the secondary until the safety man snagged him. McAdams, McQuage, and Ray Rex led the wolfpack onslaught while Zeno Wall, Dunc Wilson, and Lawhorn were the backfield aces for the Baptists.

BLUE DEVIL MACHINE BESTS WAKE FOREST 9-0

The Blue Devils from Duke scored a touchdown and a safety to defeat the deacons 9-0 in Durham. The touchdown came in the first period. The fast stepping "Nick" Laney crossed the line of scrimmage on an off-tackle spinner play and raced 60 yards eluding the secondary defense. The safety came in the second quarter after a bad pass from the Deacon center had been grounded behind the goal line. Captain Mason, Crawford, Rossiter, and Laney were too much for the Deacons.

DELAWARE UNIVERSITY BOWS TO WAKE FOREST

The Deacons journeyed north and took a hard fought game from the strong Delaware eleven 7-0. The Baptists played their best football in the second quarter. A pass from "Ed" Shinn to Holton brought the ball into scoring position for Wake Forest. After bucking the line for three times Meyers scored the lone touchdown and extra point.

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY TOPS DEACONS 14-6

The strong Cardinal eleven nosed out the fighting Baptists at the Nation's Capital. The Deacons' strong defense was unable to check the thrusting and smashing of the Cardinals. Sheay and Jankowski were line gainers for the victor. The Deacons completed five passes but for only short gains. "Frosty" Peters made a brilliant 72 yard run in the third period for the Wake Forest score.

CARSON NEWMAN CRUSHED ON SOCIETY DAY

The Demon Deacons took their only home game by trouncing the Carson Newman eleven 20-6, on Society Day. The losers secured their touchdown in the third quarter when Shabel passed to Corban, who stepped off 72 yards for the longest run of the game. Peters scored Wake Forest's first tally. Shinn took over the second marker and Clark, by intercepting a pass, scored in the final period. Faulkenberg, Swann, and Green played well in the Deacon forward wall.

DAVIDSON UPSSETS DEACONS IN TURKEY TILT

The scrapping Wildcats took revenge on the Deacons in the annual Thanksgiving by defeating them 7-0. Although Wake Forest piled up twice as many first downs as Davidson, the game was taken by Pearce, who intercepted a pass and ran 55 yards for the only score of the game. Wake Forest outplayed the "Cats" but could not push over a touchdown in the crucial moments. Swann, Shinn, and Wilson, were the Deacon bright lights.

Freshman Football

BABY DEACONS CRUSH WILLIAM AND MARY 6-0

The Baby Deacons opened their 1932 football season by defeating the strong Norfolk division of William and Mary College, 6-0. Monk Mason, backfield ace for the Baptist Yearlings, was the outstanding player of the game. It was his pass to Huskey that accounted for the lone touchdown of the game. Mason, Huskey, and Wall were outstanding in the Deaclet's backfield while Hood, Daniels, and Mills were the best in the line.

FROSH SUBMERGE E. C. T. C. 20-0

The Wake Forest Freshman team continued their good football by trouncing the E. C. T. C. gridders from Greenville, 20-0. The freshmen pushed over three touchdowns and a safety. The first touchdown was made by Huskey, who broke loose for a 45 yard end run. In the third period the Baptist Frosh scored two additional touchdowns, one by the aerial route, the other a line buck by Huskey.

DUKE IMPS BEST DEACLETS 13-7

The Duke Imps gave the Wake Forest Freshmen their first defeat 13-7. Duke threatened the Wake Forest goal more than the score would indicate but the stellar defense put up by the Baby Deacons enabled them to recover the ball after four downs. In the second period, Ward slipped off tackle for the Duke eleven's first score. In the final period Ward scored for the Imps again with a 3 yard line buck. The Baby Deacons scored in the last minute of the game by a forward pass from Hatcher to Huskey.

OWENS (guard)—Captain Owens was a menace to every forward that he guarded. His opponent had a hard time scoring with this good guard on him. Charlie was a great help in working the ball through the opposing defense. He had a keen eye for the basket and led the entire team in the percentage of free throws made good. The team will regret that this is his last year on the varsity.

MALLOY (guard)—"Hack" was the most outstanding player on the Deacon quint. Playing the position of floor guard he was efficient at this position and very successful in scoring. Incidentally, he was fouled three times as much as any other single member of the varsity. He was a master at handling and controlling a basketball. With 139 tallies he led the scoring for the 1932-'33 basketball season.

MULHERN (forward)—One of the fastest men on the court was Joe Mulhern. He knew how to handle a basketball. He had a trained eye for the basket and could find it from any position on the court. Joe filled a big place on the team and his absence was felt when he was forced out of a game on account of injuries.

BARNES (forward)—"Lefty" can find that basket as if he were pitching to a catcher's mitt. Junie is an accurate shot and the peculiar thing is—he pushes the ball up, off his left hand, while he is in motion. It is remarkable how many baskets he scores. His low, fast, left hand dribble fools many a guard.

SWINE (center)—"Stork" was the ideal center for the Demon Deacon basketball team. With his height he could get the tip from center and ably covered the rebounds under the baskets. He was the pivot man on the offense, occupying the center position, he would usually be given the ball to work it in for a goal. On defense he would stick with his man like a shadow.

EARP (forward)—Howard, was the hardest fighting man on the club. When in action he would fight all the time for possession of that ball. His brilliant playing in a game would always arouse the admiration of the spectators. His fast, low, dribble was hard to stop and he had a true hook pass that found its mark. Earp was a "dead shot" for the basket.

JOHNSON (guard)—He, too, has the weight and speed which are required of every successful guard. This is his first year on the varsity quint, having shown great promise in the Intramural Basketball League during the past year. He will be able to step into the shoes of a regular next year.

FORENEY (center)—"Bob," too, has the height that is so essential for a basketball player. He made an excellent understudy for Swing at the center position. When in the game he was sure to receive his share of the points. Foreney was a good player and deserves credit for his ability.

CLARK (guard)—In the first place he is built for a guard's position. Having experience, speed, and ability to move quickly, Clark qualifies as a good guard. He played his first year on the varsity this season but will have all the rough edges worn off by next year. He has great prospects.

JOYNER (forward)—"Monk" will be remembered as a scrapping forward. You couldn't play rough with him and get by with it. On his long shots and craps he deserved recognition as an outstanding forward. His pivot shook many an opponent off and resulted in two points for Wake Forest.

DARK (guard)—As a newcomer on the basketball team Dark showed up well. He is a fine basketball player and will be well acquainted with the Deacon court machine after this year of experience. In the games in which he participated his guarding was very commendable.

Resume of Basketball Season

The basketball team opened its season by trouncing the Catawba Indians 41-15. Malloy, Deacon guard, topped the scoring in the first contest with a total of 10 points. The Blue Devils set back the Deacon quint 33-24, in the second contest of the season. Erskine, next proved an easy victim of a 53-30 verdict. Malloy and Barnes led the attack against Erskine. Carolina nosed out the Wake Forest quint by a three point margin, 36-33. Weathers, Tar Heel forward, led the scoring with 12 points for his team, while Malloy secured 13 tallies for Wake Forest. This game was in the bag for Wake Forest until Carolina staged a rally toward the end of the game. Duke completely mastered the Deacons in the second meeting, handing them the short end of a 34-16 decision. The Tar Heels defeated the Deacons 38-26 in the Memorial Auditorium in Raleigh. The Baptist basketball team tightened up and set back State College in the Memorial Auditorium, 23-19. Clark, State guard, led the teams with 12 points to his credit. Mulhern, Deacon forward, led the Deacons with 8 points. On the northern trip Catholic University won 38-27. George Washington University set back the Deacons, 38-28. The varsity eagers concentrated on their North Carolina foe next, Davidson, and trounced them to the tune of 45-42. On the offensive, Mulhern led Coach Emmer-son's boys with 14 points, while his teammate Malloy bagged 11. State College sought revenge in their second game with the Baptists and got it in the form of a 25-22 score in their favor. The Baptists submerged the Elon Christians, 42-28. Malloy in this game was the backbone of the team and was outstanding on the offensive as well as the defensive. The last game of the season was dropped to Catawba by the close score of 30-29.

Freshman Basketball

The 1933 Freshman basketball team had a very successful season and quite a few of the players are likely to make a strong bid for the Varsity quint next year.

The Baby Deacons dropped only three of their scheduled games, which is quite a good record for a team playing together for the first time. Each of these three teams had been defeated by the Deacleets in another engagement, so no team in the State can boast of having a better team than the 1933 edition of the Baby Deacons. In their first engagement of the year the Freshmen beat the Blue Imps of Duke 30-28. Mt. Pleasant was the next victim and they were defeated 26-24. The Chowan "co-eds" took a beating at the hands of the Freshmen to the tune of 59-21. Wilmington High School bowed to the superiority of the Deacleets in taking a trouncing 32-18. The Carolina Freshmen were nosed out by the count of 27-26. The "Yearlings" from State were calmed down in the auditorium in Raleigh, 38-23. E. C. T. C. came out on the short end of the scoring in a game that ended 38-21 in favor of the Baptist Frosh.

This team had some very good players on its line-up. On the forward positions there were Brunt, Pero, Aree, Avery, Tate, and Elliott. Brunt and Pero worked together so successfully that opposing guards had no little trouble in keeping up with them. Both were good dribblers and each had a good eye for that basket. Elliott, was a flashy forward with speed and ability. Patton, Bryson, and Hooks became good pivot men. "Pat" played with a great deal of confidence and his height accounted for many field goals. When he was on defense he was a hard man to get around. On the guard positions we have Hatcher, Loftin, and Wall. Hatcher was captain of the Freshman quint. As a guard he was capable because he could handle a ball in getting it into the basket and could break for the opponents goal in time to thwart an attempted threat. Loftin was an able floor guard and he had the requisites necessary for this position. He had a fast dribble, a speedy break for the basket, and consequently featured in the Deacleets scoring.

JUNIE BARNES (pitcher)—Junie may be termed the "Old Faithful" because he delivered at every big game. He floats the ball in from the port side and always keeps the batters guessing. "Lefty" always kept the hits scattered and much of his success was due to the fine hacking he received from his mates. When the umpire announced the battery of Barnes and Hicks he was calling the name of the best battery in North Carolina.

"MONK" JOYNER (first base)—"Monk" was the loud gun of the Deacon nine. He was the fourth man up to the plate for Wake Forest. And he could "sock that rock"! Joyner, led the Deacon team in the batting percentage by averaging for the season well over the .300 mark. Besides his brilliant batting he was a great infielder, covering first base and all surrounding territory with the speed and ability of a great baseball player.

JOHNNIE HICKS (catcher)—Although Johnnie is diminutive he can hang on any ball and undoubtedly was the best catcher in the Big Five circle. His snappy peg to second was as accurate and as fast as a rifle bullet. Base-runners were kept in constant fear of "that true arm." Then, too, Johnnie could wield a mean willow and he would drive the ball in the same manner in which he threw it.

"CHICK" BUNTING (second base)—This fellow held down no weak spot in the Baptist's infield. "Chick," playing his first year on the varsity, lived up to the expectations of Coach Caddell and fitted perfectly in the well balanced infield. Bunting, had a good baseball eye, consequently his errors were few and far between.

HOWARD EARP (short-stop)—In Howard, the Wake Forest tradition for above par short-stops, was fulfilled. He stepped into a position that had seen such men as Stringfield and Clayton. Earp was remarkably fast and could find first base from deep short as well as cover a "set up." Many a batter has been robbed of an expectant hit by this flashy short-stop.

LEON BROGDEN (third base)—Here we have a dependable custodian of the "hot corner." Leon got his share of these hot liners and snared most of them to his credit and to the success of the team. His throw to first was keen and he held down his sack so efficiently that many an attempted run died on his bag. In batting he ranked second from the top.

JOE MULHEEN (left field)—Joe was a very fine outfielder. Being exceptionally fast he could get under any fly in his territory and often camped under a wide foul, much to the disappointment of the ambitious batter. Mulhern had a good arm which went a long way toward holding in check a fast runner on the bases. Joe held down a difficult post and did it well.

FAUST JOHNSON (center field)—Here is a boy that stepped into the front ranks playing on the varsity nine for the first year. He was a very good fielder with a true peg to the home plate. His strength lay in his batting. It was a pleasure with the score tied to see him take the pill for a long ride, usually long enough for him to circle the bases with ease.

DOUG WHITE (right field)—Doug, although not so fast, being a little stout, could admirably cover his territory. Very few balls passed him and those that did were over his head. Even these were destined for a speedy recovery. At the bat White ranked along with the heavy clouters. His timely hitting stood the team in good stead in a pinch.

THE romance of Yates dates back from childhood. He and Eliza Moring were friends when they were mere children playing together. She was a native of Chatham County and daughter of John Moring. As her father died while she was young, she came to live with an uncle at Greensboro. Here she had excellent educational advantages. After having completed a course in a Presbyterian seminary, she became a governess in the home of William Merritt of her native county.

During vacations she and Yates saw much of each other, and soon their friendship ripened into love. Perhaps this courtship is one of the most colorful periods of Yates' life; and certainly his marriage on September 27, 1846 was one of the most important events of his life, and had no little to do with his subsequent usefulness. Mrs. Yates was very talented and industrious. She greatly facilitated the work of her husband by organizing a school for girls in Shanghai.

Acknowledgments

WE wish to express our appreciation to Edwards and Broughton Company for the spirit of helpfulness it has exhibited to the staff this year; to Dunbar and Daniel Studio for the excellent photos furnished; and to "Slim" Davis and the Charlotte Engraving Company for the splendid way in which they have labored with the staff, and for the superior work done on the theme of the book.

To Dr. G. W. Paschal we are indebted for the excellent work done in compiling the long list of missionaries who have gone out from Wake Forest.

Lastly, to all the students who have cooperated with the staff so well this year, we wish to express our thanks.

Doctor Poteat noticed that every time he mentioned Satan in his sermon, a freshman on the front row howed reverently. One day he met the freshman on the street and asked him why he did so.

"Well," answered the freshman, "politeness costs nothing, and—you never know!"

Some Wake Forest hoy is going to have to miss that next Central Carolina German Club dance.

BUILDERS DREAMS

VISIONS created by the imagination precede the achievement of any really great accomplishment. The ability to weave the threads of imagination into the finished fabric is equally important.

It has been the privilege of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY to cooperate with the HOWLER staff in creating their vision into material form.

Such cooperation is one of the "visions" which precede the building of a successful business, and is a part of the working policy of the EDWARDS & BROUGHTON COMPANY.

To those Staffs desiring complete cooperation, we offer unexcelled service. You, too, may be proud of your annual.
